

Amy GREENE

Senior Fellow - American Politics

Amy Greene is a US-born Franco-American researcher, author, and consultant on US politics and related transatlantic and geopolitical dynamics. Among her areas of expertise are the impact of societal transformations on American domestic and foreign policies, the consequences of presidential and Congressional politics across sectors, France-EU-US relations, and US policy within larger geopolitical dynamics. She advises and consults for a diverse French, European, and American clientele consisting of high-level and C-suite actors across a wide range of industries and sectors in the public and private sectors.

Amy teaches at Sciences Po Paris and Boston University. She regularly appears in French and international media. She is the author of two books - L'Amérique face à ses fractures (Tallandier, 2024) and L'Amérique Après Obama (Autrement, 2012) – and many publications appearing in revues and the press.

Amy Greene is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, Sciences Po Paris and The American University.
